City shares information for Thursday's Special City Council meeting

City releases information that will be a starting point to the discussion of multi-family development within our community during the Special City Council meeting on Thursday, Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. (doors will open at 6:30 p.m.) at Burleson City Hall.

The city would like to share some information, <http://bit.ly/2kQE1x1>, that will be a starting point to the discussion of multi-family development within our community during the Special City Council meeting on Thursday, Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. (doors will open at 6:30 p.m.) at Burleson City Hall.

The linked presentation is only a starting point for the discussion. These slides were developed based on the questions/comments/concerns that are circulating on social media, as well as direct questions to the city. Additional information and improvements will be added to this presentation before Thursday.

Things to know:

- There will be no vote taken by council, this meeting is for informational purposes only.
- This meeting is not to discuss or consider any particular development within the city, it is an informational meeting about multi-family development within the city as a whole.
- Council Chambers have a capacity around 140. There will be additional space for about 35 people in the lobby of city hall.
- The meeting will be streamed live, <https://www.burlesontx.com/880/Streaming-Video> and archived. Viewers will also be able to watch it on the city's cable channel (Charter channel 190).
- During the meeting, city staff will not be utilizing any chairs in the council chambers to allow for the maximum amount of public participation.
- If you can not attend you can submit your questions or concerns to records@burlesontx.com.

We look forward to seeing you at the special city council meeting on Thursday.
